

Katherine Lindsay is a Counsel in the financial restructuring group at Akin Gump. She represents institutional investors, financial institutions, hedge funds and private equity funds in complex workouts and insolvency proceedings across a variety of sectors, including power, oil and gas, mining, real estate, maritime shipping, and technology. She has significant cross-border experience and often represents private placement investors in Australian restructurings. In particular, Ms. Lindsay represented noteholder groups in Arrium (Australia), Centro Properties (Australia), Fletcher Building (New Zealand and Australia), Chicago Bridge & Iron (Netherlands), and CEMEX (Mexico). She also represents Australian and New Zealand receivers and administrators in U.S. bankruptcy proceedings. In addition, Ms. Lindsay advises clients at earlier stages in the investment process in connection with a wide array of secured and unsecured financing transactions, including by evaluating proposed investment and credit structures to mitigate financial risk, developing cross-border collateral packages, and assisting with early-stage amendment discussions.
